

Thanksgiving do-gooders get early start

by The Star-Ledger Continuous News Desk

Tuesday November 20, 2007, 5:02 PM

John Munson/The Star-Ledger Lester Lewis of Elizabeth, far left, and Det. Peter J. Campanelli of the Union County Sheriff's Office watch today as Elaine O'Neal, the Victim Witness Coordinator at the Union County Prosecutor's Office, hugs Idella Lapierre of Elizabeth, who will distribute some of food baskets and turkeys to needy members of her neighborhood.

Robert Sciarrino/The Star-Ledger Interfaith Food Pantry in Morristown Volunteers Terry Scullin, back toward camera, and Don Macgowan, right, distributed turkeys today from the basement of St. Margaret's Church to needy working families and senior citizens of Morris County. Executive director Rosemary Gilmartin said 1,008 Morris County families signed up to receive a free turkey and the fixings for a Thanksgiving Day meal.